Out of Doors

All Except Archibald, Who Gets No Farther Than Window.

Mrs. Roosevelt, wife of the President, who has been housed for several weeks with her sick son Archibald, who has about recovered from his diphtheria, was out yesterday and took a long walk in the bright sunshine with Miss Isabel Hugener. They walked out several miles in the suburbs. During this time the President was out on his regular Sunday afternoon horseback ride, accompanied by his second son, Kermit, who is at home for his Easter holidays.

While his parents were absent, Archibald, who is still in charge of two nurses, amused himself with a megaphone, talking through it out the back window, and throwing his voice far over the yard and walks at the south of mansion. When the wind rose to violence later in the afternoon he was ordered away from the window and his fun was spoiled, according to his own account. He has so far recovered that he will probably be able to be out some time this week.

Senator and Mrs. Winthrop Murray Crane are being congratulated today on the birth of a son Saturday night at their home, 172 Rhode Island avenue. Mrs. Crane was Miss Josephine Porter Boardman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Boardman, of Washington, and her marriage to Senator Crane was one of the important social events of last summer and took place at the Boardman country place, Windycille, Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass. Boardman was well known in Washington society and an intimate friend of Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, formerly Miss Alice Roosevelt.

Mrs. Evelyn Cheney left Washington Saturday for Philadelphia, where she will remain until Wednesday. She is the guest of Mrs. Frank Ralston. Coffey, in her home on K street.

Miss McMillan will return to this country this summer accompanied by her nieces, and go to the summer home of the McMillans at Manchester-by-the-Sea, where they will join Mrs. McMillan. Miss Jarvis would have been presented to society next season, but this will probably be deferred now because of the mourning of the McMillan family for the late William C. McMillan, who died a few weeks ago in Detroit. He was the eldest of Senator McMillan's children, and was well known in society here some years ago. Miss McMillan will sail from New York with Mr. and Mrs. Walter Denegre, who spent a few days here last week on their way from the South. They are on the Elkins line to France, where they will spend three months on an automobile tour.

Miss Barbara Brodie, granddaughter of Mrs. Alexander R. Shepherd, who has spent several months with the latter this season, left today for New York, to spend the Easter season with her cousin, Mrs. Frank Coe. She will later visit friends in Cambridge, Mass. Miss Brodie is one of the most charming of Washington's visitors during the past season. UNITED STATES JOINS
MEXICO TO INTERVENE

The conference was opened by Senor Corea, the Nicaraguan minister, who first called at the Mexican embassy and discussed the possible entry into the conflict of Guatemala and Costa Rica, also declaring that Salvador already had called for aid from Honduras. Following this conference, Ambassador Creel first took up the situation with the State Department and shortly after noon they called at the State Department for an hour.

Other Ministers in Conference.

In the meantime, Senor Calvo, the Costa Rican minister, was in conference with Dr. Toledo, the newly arrived minister from Guatemala, at the Arlington, and shortly after noon they called at the State Department together.

They were received in the diplomatic chamber, this being the first time Dr. Toledo has called at the State Department officially.

In the absence of official advice confirming the big battle of last week, in which 1,000 Salvadorans were reported killed, officials here are prone to believe that later reliable information will reduce Salvador's losses in that engagement to about 100.

Zelaya Is Attacking
Capital of Honduras

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, March 25.—Tegucigalpa, capital of Honduras, is under attack by President Zelaya, according to a report received today. Its fall is expected today.

Details of the fighting on Friday show that the allied armies of President Bonilla, Honduras, and General Press, the Salvadoran commander, were routed.

Choluteca, the most strongly fortified town in Honduras, fell into the hands of President Zelaya almost without a fight after the allies had been defeated in a ten-hours' battle at Maraita.

President Bonilla is a fugitive and is racing for some Pacific port. Nicaraguan vessels are watching the coast closely, and it is believed he will be intercepted.

After their defeat at Maraita the Hondurans and Salvadorans retreated toward Choluteca. The retreat soon became a rout in which the fugitives threw away their arms and ammunition.

The fleeing armies were dogged by Choluteca, the Nicaraguans giving them no time to fortify themselves. Then President Bonilla choosing a guard of 200 men, started for the coast. General Press, with the remnants of his command, made for the Salvadoran border.

ARE PLANNING SETTLEMENT

The movement among the creditors of Walter Heston, the bankrupt broker, to form an agreement to stop the proceedings growing out of his voluntary bankruptcy, gathered strength today.

SEVEN YEARS' TAXES
NEED NOT BE PAID

In the matter of John W. Morris' claim, presented recently to the Commissioners for rebate of taxes erroneously assessed for the past ten years against property in McLaughlin subdivision, Prospect Hill, Corporation (Council E. H. Thomas submitted an opinion to the Commissioners today, holding that taxes assessed three years before 1902 are rightly assessed, and are due and shall be collected, but that taxes for the remaining seven years shall be canceled.

This property was purchased by Mr. Morris during a long stage of litigation for title and collection of back taxes, and it is on the ground that he was not a party to the establishing title nor responsible for taxes in arrears that the seven years' taxes erroneously assessed are remitted.

EXCITING TIMES;
SOME CRITICISMTHE MISSES SHONT'S
AUTO ADVENTURE

Ever since the Conduit road became the popular boulevard for Washington automobilists, Collins has spared no pains to prohibit speeding. He has been the one dark spot on the clear stretch of macadam that extends along the north side of the Potomac.

Washington automobilists have been the target for Collins' activities, and the amounts they have paid in fines would total up to a large sum.

On several occasions Collins has met with experiences similar to the incident Saturday. Only recently one of the bolder chauffeurs drove right on past the marshal. Collins was standing in the middle of the road, leaning on his bicycle, when a big touring car drove in sight. The machine slowed down as it approached the town officer, then when it was within a few feet of him shot ahead full speed.

Jumping on his wheel, Collins gave chase, and overtook the car. Just before he caught up with it, however, the driver set the brakes, and Collins smashed into it head first, and was thrown to the ground.

Then the machine started off, while the party of automobilists stood up and waved their hands at the figure sprawling in the dust.

DUKE DE CHAULNES
PRAISES PARIS WOMEN

"No," he replied hesitatingly, and his manner conveyed the impression that the whole romance depended on certain contingencies.

"No announcement is to be made at this time," he added, thoughtfully. "Nothing has been settled."

Mrs. Shonts is said to be entirely in favor of the handsome young nobleman, although it is a question whether he appeals so strongly to the sturdy Americanism of Mr. Shonts. Mr. Shonts is not in Washington. It is believed the idea of a coronet in the family does not strike him with any great force. If this is true, it will, of course, have due effect on the settlement—the dot—which is such a distinguished feature of the international marriage.

Duke's Personality.

So far as the duke's personality goes, Mr. Shonts is understood to entirely approve of him. Any objection he may have would find its expression in his Americanism pure and simple. In the meantime Washington society is watching the courtship with the keenest interest.

The duke himself seems uncertain of the outcome. He is not at all sure how
